VIGILANT POLICE KEEP CITY SAFE

The Police Department may be called the barometer of city life. When the morale and character of the department deteriorates, crime flourishes and law is defied. On the other hand, where there is a well-ordered, conscientious police force there will be found a law-abiding community. A great resposibility rests upon that branch of public service which regulates public behavior and maintains the dignity of the law. There can be no real progress unless these important duties are discharged by men of discretion and integrity.

On numerous occasions Daly City has been described in these columns as a desirable home community and its many advantages have been recapitulated with sincere conviction. It may now be stated that this happy condition has been brought about, to a great extent, by the praiseworthy efforts of our local guardians of the peace. The subject for consideration at this time is the Daly City Police Department, which has indelibly written its fine record into the history of the city. This review will cover the ten year period from 1922 to 1932, during which time the development of Greater Daly City has taken place.

On Monday, April 17, 1922, the Council Chamber of the City Hall was crowded to the doors on the occasion of the first meeting of a newly organized City Council. One of the turning points in Daly City's political history had just been passed and at this meeting various appointments were announced under the new regime. No appointee was received with louder acclaim and greater enthusiasm than John T. Doyle, new City Marshal. Young, genial, somewhat bashful, he was called forward to acknowledge his appointment. The greeting accorded him was almost overwhelming and bore witness to his popularity. Ten years of faithful service have passed since that memorable night; the marshal has become Chief of Police and now directs a department which includes seven officers, but the passing years have made no change in the warm geniality, sound judgment, tested courage and common sense of Chief Doyle. He has faithfully fulfilled the obligations of his office, has bodly confronted its various problems and has confirmed the wisdom of his appointment in every particular.

When Chief Doyle took office the public safety of the city lay in the hands of two men and each twenty-four hour period was divided into two shifts. Chief Doyle was on duty in the day time and Sergeant A. L. Hilton, who had been night marshal for five years, took the night shift. This arrangement continued until 1926, when the late William Hopman was appointed assistant day marshal. In 1928 Otto Schramm, now State traffic officer, was added to the roll. In 1929 three new officers were appointed, E. Heim, W. Sunderland, J. Reardon, and in 1931 J. Cusber was appointed. To meet the extra demands of Sundays and holidays George Hopman was recently appointed temporary officer. A. Benedetti is also a special officer.

The increase in the size of our Police Department has not been made necessary by crime wave, for Daly City has been singularly free from lawlessness. This is what might be expected in a community of homes. Daly City started on the right lines and has always maintained an exceptional reputation. Major crimes have been rare and the number of petty offences has not been large in proportion to population. Most of the minor cases of law-breaking are traceable to the incursions of transients who pass through our city in large numbers on their way to the Bay region. The number of crimes originating in the homes of our own community is almost negligible.

Highway motor traffic furnishes the main problem to be dealt with by our local officers. The tremendous increase in traffic volume has made it necessary to enlarge the Police Department to its present proportions. Two great highways converge at Daly City and a ceaseless stream of vehicles moves through the city. Careful regulation of this situation is imperative and our officers have been well chosen for their work. Confirmation of their success may be obtained from the statistics of accidents in their territory. Their vigilance has produced a wholesome respect for motor vehicle laws.

The department has been greatly aided in the past three years by the establishment of boulevard stop signs and standard starting signals on Mission street. The latter have been exceedingly effective at Hillcrest Drive and Mission street—the busiest corner in Daly City.

Motorists who formerly were inclined to step on the gas when they passed the limits of San Francisco county now discover that they must proceed with caution for two miles more. They have learned that their journey through Daly City is conducted under the vigilant supervision of several neat, alert and well-instructed officers, who will not fail to correct any irregularities in highway conduct.

Chief Doyle and Sergeant Hilton in their long association have manifested considerable skill and good judgment in the manner in which they have dealt with the domestic problems of the city at times when crime seemed to threaten. On many occasions by energetic and timely action they have prevented misdemeanor and averted felony. Their wise and close observation of local conditions and their acquaintance with the peculiarities of the neighborhood have resulted in a splendid record of crime prevention. The younger members of the department have benefited greatly from the experience and methods of their senior officers. All the activities of the department have been strengthened by intelligent co-operation, and local residents enjoy more than ordinary safety under the watchful guardianship of the Daly City Police.

BOY SCOUTS PLAN RALLY IN APRIL

The local Boy Scouts and Cub Packs were provided a real treat last week in the form of a novel program of motion pictures, furnished through the courtesy of Mr. L. Everett Smith, assistant manager of the Boy Scout Trading Post, 583 Market street, San Francisco. The enthusiasm with which this sort of entertainment was received has encouraged Mr. L. W. Johnston, District Commissioner, to arrange for future showings.

Although the pictures were entertaining to a certain degree, they were also instructive from an educational standpoint, and their intention and purpose were no doubt absorbed by a good many of the boys who had the opportunity of viewing them. Mr. Smith, who has had considerable experience in dealing with the modern boy, did not overlook the fact that such a presentation would eventually become uninteresting, and he very thoughtfully brought along a few reels of good comedies to liven up the show. As is the usual case in most show-houses, a couple of good, clean comedies are sometimes considered the whole show, especially by the youngsters, and these films were no exception.

The chairman of the District Committee, City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, reported that he expects to be very well occupied for the next few weeks forming plans for the Grand Rally to be given by this district the early part of the month of April. He will be assisted by the district committee in the formation of these tentative preparations, and at the next meeting of the district committee definite plans will be made.

Details regarding the Grand Rally will be announced at a future date, and we can assure you that the committee is out to make this celebration one of the outstanding affairs to be staged within the boundaries of our beautiful "City of Home Builders." The public will be invited to attend and help demonstrate to our neighborhood districts that our boys have the whole-hearted support of a real live community.

The Boy Scout movement has progressed considerably within the last year in this locality. When our youths of today have reached their majority and assume the responsibilities of citizenship, the patriotic principles expounded by Mr. Bodien and the noble efforts he has so willing extended to the boyhood of this district will, in later years, reflect credit upon the community of Daly City, for its portion of clean-living, upright and straightforward citizens, who will be prepared and willing to take their part in upholding the laws and institutions of the American government. These ideals are the fundamental object of the Boy Scout movement, and we know of no person more interested in attaining this objective than Mr. Arthur J. Bodien. His loyalty to Daly City and her youth is to be commended.

NEW BOOKS AT LOCAL LIBRARY

Following is a partial list of new books recently purchased by Mrs. O'Rourk for the Daly City library:

"Good Earth," by Buck.
"Shadow on the Rock," by Cather.
"Silver Bride," by Dell.
"American Beauty," by Ferber.
"Maid in Waiting," by Galsworthy.
"Arizona Ames," by Grey.
"Swiss Family Manhattan," by Morley.
"Belle Mere," by Norris.

AMERICAN LEGION DANCE A SUCCESS

The dance given by Daly City Post No. 410, American Legion, on last Friday evening, was a complete social success. It seemed as if on that night everyone put old man Depression in the background, and wanted to forget their troubles and enjoy a few hours of recreation.

The San Mateo County Council of the American Legion will hold their meeting tonight, February 4, at Menlo Park, in the Masonic Hall. It is interesting for Legionnaires.

Anyone wishing to spend a pleasant evening tomorrow, February 5, can go to Hoover Hall, in Burlingame, and play whist with the Forty and Eight of San Mateo county.

Saturday night, February 12, South San Francisco Legion Post will be hosts at a dance. "Doc" and his haywire orchestra will furnish the music, so 'nough sed!

Daly City Post No. 410 will hold their next regular meeting on Friday evening, March 11, at Eagles Hall.

The Veterans' Administration reported that on November 30, 1931, 43,045 veterans were under government hospital treatment, classified as follows: Tuberculosis, 7,574; nervous and mental, 18,875, and general medical and surgical, 16,596. These veterans were under treatment in 327 hospitals, of which 219 were private institutions caring for patients under contract with the Veterans' Administration. The report further showed that 3,228 of these patients were in private hospitals. The Veterans' Administration reported that on November 30, World war veterans had made 3,563,929 loans on Adjusted Service Certificates, totaling $1,186,815,810, and during the month of November, 1931, 32,743 loans were made in a total amount of $12,362,307.

CROCKER P. T. A. TO OBSERVE BURBANK'S ANNIVERSARY

The next regular meeting of the Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association will be held in the club rooms, 12 Wellington avenue, on Tuesday, March 8, at 2:30 P. M. The nominating committee is to be chosen at that time, and the delegates to the state convention. The guests speakers will be Miss Victoria Rousel, past president of the Seventeenth District, and Mrs. E. I. Bartlett, of South San Francisco, the first vice-president of the Seventeenth District. A fine program has been arranged to celebrate Luther Burbank's birthday, and St. Patrick's day, together.

SCOUT EXECUTIVES TO MEET TOMORROW

Scout executives from the four western states, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and California, will gather for the Twelfth Regional Conference in San Francisco during the week of March 5, opening with a session in keeping with the Scout Law of Reverence at 12:30 noon.

National men in attendance are Arthur A. Schuck, director of division of operations, and Harold F. Pote, director of division of personnel.

Preceding the executives' conference, the annual regional meeting, under the leadership of Stuart W. French, of Pasadena, will assemble in conclave.

HOME-BREDS WILL RUN AT TANFORAN

There will be plenty of home-bred two year olds in the racing to begin at Tanforan the last day of this month. Colts and fillies from nurseries in the San Francisco bay region have been at the San Bruno plant since the wind-up of the winter period of sport and have made satisfactory progress in their education as racers.

The Bahr gate is in position on the training course and schooling of the youngsters is going on each morning. Assistant starter Eddie Thomas, of the Harry Morrissey staff, an adept at teaching babies the accepted way of breaking from a stall, is in charge.

John W. Marchbank has the largest string of young runners, with "Charlie" Hartwell in second place. The Marchbank two year olds were bred at Heather Farm, the foaling place of numerous well known performers on the important tracks of the country. This band promises to be the best ever sent out of the Contra Costa county haras.

The youngsters, with the names granted by the Jockey Club, are as follows:

Prince Heather, Blk. G., King Heather-Lady Julian. Ramsey Mac, B. G., King Heather-Angie Mac. Regrebtan, B. G., War Cry-Lovelace. Spindle, Ch. G., King Heather-Little Spider. The Miner, B. G., War Cry-Miss Cook. War Over, B. G., War Cry-Bit of Blarney. Parsimonious, Br. G., War Cry-Princess Marie. Massive, B. G., War Cry-Little Kid Carroll. Hudal, B. G., Krewer-Princess Nadette. Lady Riaf, B. F., War Cry-Spooksie Bradley. Native Daughter, Br. F., War Cry-Monardella. Wanda D., Blk. F., King Heather-Susan M. Dancing Jane, B. F., War Cry-Eva Hackley. Torsion, Br. F., War Cry-Ida Francis. Xingu, Br. F., War Cry-Greetings. Gladden, Ch. F., Rock Heather-Grace.

Prince Heather, of good conformation and a taking way of going, is the "pick" of many observers. He is a full brother to the good winner Justina and the high-class three year old Chepara. Native Daughter is a half sister to the clever Chazzan.

In the Hartwell band of eight are "pals" of Modesto, winner in fast time at Hialeah, such as Salinas and colts with Hawaiian monikers, hard to spell and harder to pronounce.

NATIVE SONS HAVE NEW SET OF OFFICERS

El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, Native Sons of the Golden West, met at Eagles Hall on Wednesday evening, February 24, with all chairs held by new officers. The officers elect are: Junior Past President, Leonard J. Mohr; President, Edward Eliason; First Vice-President, Theodore Clemens; Second Vice-President, Harry A. MacDouald; Third Vice-President, Fred Knoll; Marshal, David Arata; Sentinel, Peter Kasich; Organist, Garrett L. Colloty; Secretary, Walter L. Murphy.

Preident Ed Eliason has worked zealously for the past three years to attain the position he now holds. His unswerving faith has carried him on and held for him the esteem of all his brother members. With Ed as its leader, El Cermelo looks forward to a most successful year.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

Mr. Crane, the district superintendent, has set the last week of March and the first two weeks of April as the dates for the annual Eighth grades' hike to Mount Tamalpais.

The last unlimited basketball game of the season was played last Friday, between Colma and Woodrow Wilson. After some good hard playing, the game resulted in a victory for Colma. In the first half of the game the score stood 11 to 2 in favor of Colma, but at the end of tthe second half, Colma had gained only two points. Woodrow Wilson, through desperate fighting and a growing knowledge of the game, gained ten points.

Six games were played by the three schools, making four games for each school. The result of thte series was three victories for Colma with one game lost to Woodrow Wilson, and three victories for Woodrow Wilson with one game lost to Colma, making the final result for the district a tie between Colma and Woodrow Wilson.

The past few weeks of basketball has given the boys a fairly good understanding of the game. Our next season of basketball should give us some good games, with outstanding individual players, as well as good team-work.

Some changes in baseball equipment are to be made this season, which have been the subject of considerable discussion among the boys while plans have been under way. A nine-inch outseamed baseball is to be used. This ball though softer than a regular league ball, can be hit just as far. The ball is considered much safer, which is quite necessary on our small play-grounds. The ball also enables the boys to play without the use of a glove, and this, of course, gives everyone a chance to play.

There are to be three groups, to be divided according to weight as follows: Best players are known as the "unlimited;" the next group weights range from 89 to 199 pounds; and smaller players range from 85 to 89 pounds. This arrangement will make use of every boy in the Seventh and Eighth grades.

The General Pershing P. T. A. presented an acacia tree to the school in honor of Washington's birthday. Mrs. Lillian Landini presided at the ceremony of planting the tree.

VETERANS HONOR FATHER OF NATION

Old Glory Post, V. F. W., with the assistance of Old Glory Auxiliary, observed the Washington Bicentennial on Friday evening, February 26. Mr. Brower with the violin and Amelda Welsh at the piano played, and then there was community singing of patriotic songs, prior to the joint meeting. There was an address by Councilman Sundermann, who is also a Veteran of Foreign Wars, belonging to Musicians' Post.

Four members of Oold Glory Auxiliary attended Astor Auxiliary on Friday, February 26, the occasion being the official visit of Department President Henrietta Mills, who gave a very interesting talk on the dedication of the Auxiliary cottage at Eaton Rapids, Michigan. She was followed by Consuelo De Coe, the wife of Commander-in-Chief De Coe, also the National Senior Vice-president of V. F. W. Auxiliaries. She gave an explanation of the new membership drive. Initiation fee will be only $1 for a six month period, beginning last January 1, to July 1. Those women who are eligible to join will get in much cheaper now than any other time. Then she gave a talk on the work being done by the V. F. W. in Washington on the bonus question, stating that our Commander-in-Chief was on the verge of pneumonia while broadcasing the "Hello, America" hour, having two doctors in attendance. The V. F. W. certainly have a commander-in-chief to be proud of.

Those attending from Old Glory were Louise Refatti, Olivia Refatti, Louise Crowley and Doris Pangburn.

"DOES GOD CARE?" IS SERMON TOPIC

A sermon on the subject of prayer will be delivered in Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock hour. The text is found in Matthew 17:19-21. In the evening service at 7:45 the pastor will preach on "The Light of the World." The text is from John 8:12.

Special services are being arranged for Holy Week, when a band of young people from San Francisco will have charge of the services. Special evangelistic singing will be rendered and it is expected that a large number of new members will be added to the church.

COLLEGE STUDENTS VISIT HIGH SCHOOL

Thursday morning a special assembly was called in order to give the students an opportunity to hear a delegation from the University of California speak about the benefit derived from a college education.

Miss Council, the first speaker, gave her talk on "College Students." In advancing her reasons for the adaptability of a college man, she stated: "It does stand to reason that the greater your education the better chance you have for success. Educations means the development of all the powers of man.

"The Greeks taught by personal contact. In the absence of personal contact you learn to depend on yourself."

Listing the main traditions of her own college, Miss Council told of the famous freshmen-sophomore brawl.

"However," she stated, "our greatest tradition is study. The four years one spends at college are not a glorious playtime, but a period of sincere devotion to the purpose of broadening the mind and outlook."

Mr. Roboson, the other member of the delegation, in speaking on "College Aims," showed how education affected the life of men.

"The economic aim of college," he said, "is to give students a thorough knowledge of the various lines of work. A man not having this knowledge finds himself in a rut."

He demonstrated how the economy most college students must exercise in the use of their money prepares them for business later in their lives.

"There is nothing better than college for independent thinking," stated Mr. Roboson. "In every walk of life thought problems face us daily."

In speaking of student competition he said:

"At college we students maintain certain standards. One, the honor system, we regard very highly.

"Your business and public leaders are well educated men who have gained their success through a basic knowledge formed by education."

At the conclusion of this speech, Mr. Ferguson gave a brief talk. He explained that college pranks do not represent college.

"College," he said, "has been very well represented by this delegation. College is a very serious proposition."

In closing he thanked the two Californians for their interesting speeches, and also told a humorous story bearing on the question of education.

The assembled students were then dismissed to attend short periods.

Delegates from almost every school in California attended the California Scholastic Press Association convention at Stanford, Saturday. Five members of the journalism class represented Jefferson.

The delegates registered at 9 a. m., and from then until 11 a. m. were given an opportunity to inspect the grounds and buildings and to see the display of school papers and journals in the Stanford journalism rooms.

At 11 a. m. the opening meeting of the Association was held in the Little Theatre, President Arnold Cavanaugh from Oakland Technical high school presiding. About one hundred and fifty representatives were present. Addresses of welcome were given by Dr. Robert E. Swain, president of the student body of Stanford. Mr. O. H. Blackman addressed the journalism

GENERAL PERSHING P. T. A. HAS SPLENDID PROGRAM

The General Pershing P. T. A. celebrated the bi-centennial of George Washington at their meeting last Tuesday afternoon. An intermission in the meeting afforded those present an opportunity to take part in the tree planting ceremony in the yard of the General Pershing school. Mrs. L. Landini, fourth vice-president, put the first shovelfull of dirt around the tree, which was purchased by the P. T. A. in honor of George Washington. Pricilla Watson then sang the song entitled "Trees."

Following this ceremony the meeting was continued. Mr. R. L. Crane, district superintendent of schools, gave a talk on how America was discovered three times, and Mr. Saiz, high school teacher talked on the life of George Washington. The children also presented a program of recitations and songs, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Pellegrini, school teacher, which was greatly enjoyed

At the close of the meeting the members and visitors enjoyed refreshments at a beautifully decorated table, for which Mrs. Watson was responsible. The decorations consisted of a centerpiece of George and Martha Washington and red white, and blue candlesticks. Each place had favors of hatchets and novelties, donated by Mrs. Landini. The afternoon was fully enjoyed by every one.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

The Marin Sonoma Coast Chamber of Commerce has endorsed purchase of the General Mariano Guadeloupe Vallejo home at Sonoma as a state park and urged that supervisors of the two counties appropriate funds. The purchase price was fixed at $17,300 by State Senator Herbert W. Slater of Santa Rosa.

Two important highway projects in Tulare county are included in the improvement program to be launched at once in the San Joaquin Valley. They are the $350,000 Lemon Cover-Three Rivers link which is to be surfaced, and the Golden State Highway work in Kern county, and Tulare county. A total of $792,000 has been set aside for this improvement.

California agriculture is in an excellent condition financially and family farms are in no danger of being supplanted by the institution of corporation farming, Prof. B. H. Crocheron, director of Agricultural Extension, University of California, disclosed recently. Study of census figures showed that almost half the farms in the State were free from mortgages or debt, Professor Crocheron said.

Atty.-Gen. Webb has ruled that suspension of sentence or granting of probation after convictions in drunken driving or failure to render aid cases does not relieve clerks of courts from the necessity of reporting such convictions to the State Motor Vehicle Department. It is the conviction and not the sentence that is of first importance Webb said, for the public's protection is the thing the Legislature had in mind.

Dr. J. M. Toner, Director of State Institutions, blames more than half of juvenile delinquency cases in California on broken homes caused by divorce and voluntary separation of parents. Dr. Toner said between 55 and 60 per cent of the 800 youthful inmates of the Preston School of Industry at Ione were from homes where there had been marital difficulties, and declared the same ratio held good for the 400 boys at Whittier State School and the 150 girls at the Ventura School for Girls.

The Oregon boot, once the approved footwear of will-o'-the-wisp criminals, may be regaining favor in the Northwest, but is seldom used now in California, said Clarence S. Morrill, chief of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification. Many police departments and sheriffs' offices have Oregon boots lying forgotten in dusty closets, but the modern practice of sending two officers to transport prisoners from place to place has led to their abandonment, Morrill explained. The boot is a twenty-pound steel shackle which fits around the ankle of the prisoner and is held steady by a screw reaching to the wearer's heel. The boot is locked on and the prisoner can't get it off without the key.

A higher percentage of Californians between the ages of 7 and 20 years attended school in 1930 than in 1920, and this is an important reason for gradual increase in the cost of maintaining schools, a survey just completed by the Department of Education indicated. For the State as a whole the increase in school attendance was 8.6 per cent in the decade. In 1920 there were 718,154 persons between the ages of 7 and 20, of whom 521,109, or 72.6 per cent, went to school. In 1930 there were 1,223,307 of school age, with 993,110 attending schools, or 81.2 per cent. A special study made of twenty-four cities with populations of 10,000 or more showed the increase in that group was 9.6 per cent, the percentage increasing from 71.7 in 1920 to 81.3 in 1930. Attendance data were based on Federal census figures.

The population of Walker Mine, Plumas county, is making its exodus from the little mountain community over a mile-high tramway which connects the snow-bound mine with Spring Garden, nine miles distant. Shut off from the outside world except by the tramway, 500 men, women and children of the place accepted this sole and unusual means of transportation when the mine laid off most of its crew, due to the slump in the copper market. In places the tramway reaches an altitude of 7000 feet and its cages or buckets accommodate only two persons at a time and very little household goods. The shortest road route to the mine is seventy miles long and is blocked with snow. The trams depend on gravity pull for their power and they move slowly but surely. About eighteen persons can be transported to Spring Garden daily. Single men, being the first to be laid off, are moving from the mine in the ore buckets first.

Yellow citrus scale has become a real menace in the northern section of Tulare county although it has not reached this district yet, according to Oscar L. Hemphill, county Agricultural Commissioner. It is spread by wind and birds.

Thursday between 5 and 6 p. m. is the most dangerous time for automobile accidents, the State Department of Motor Vehicle records disclosed. Reports of December accidents showed that in 3421 cases where time was given, the largest group, 479, occurred between 5 and 6 p. m.

In the wake of Governor Rolph's economy edict that no salary increases be granted during the remainder of this biennium comes the news that salaries in the State Department of Finance were increase $2048.08 in January. Records of the State Controller's office reveal that in two cases rises of $50 a month were authorized, another was for $33.34 and several were for $25. The total pay roll of the Department of Finance, which promotes the economy drives of the State government, has jumped from $38,123.74 for January, 1930, to $51,038.56 for January 1932, an increase in two years of $12,914.82.

Of the 557,208 dairy cows in California, 110,878 are to be found in four San Joaquin Valley counties, it has been revealed. In San Joaquin County the number is 28,664. In Stanislaus County there are 4,318 dairy cows. Merced County has a dairy cow population of 34,590. In Madera County the number is 7306. "The importance of the dairy industry in these four counties," W. C. Fleming, assistant farm adviser for the agricultural extension service of the College of Agriculture University of California, in San Joaquin County, said, "can scarcely be overestimated. In terms of gross receipts to dairymen, the figure runs into ten to twelve million dollars annually, depending of course on the price of butterfat."

Systematic burning of certain mountain areas has proved to be one of the most practical solutions of the hazard of brush fires, State Forester M. B. Pratt told the Southern California association of Fire Wardens and Foresters at the annual convention at Santa Barbara. As a result, Pratt said, the State Board of Forestry has been committed definitely to the policy of burning off certain brush, forest and grass areas rather than permitting dense growths of vegetation, and ultimate fire hazards. He described experiments made in Sonoma, Humboldt, Mendocino and Lake counties last year, when, he said, 12,534 acres were burned, including 330 acres of woodland, 744 acres of grass and 330 of manzanita and chimese.

As a special feature of several Washington bicentennial celebrations in various parts of the country, young sequoia trees from Sequoia National Park were planted. Planting of one of the "largest trees" apparently was considered by many organizations a particularly fitting tribute to the "greatest American." Since early December young sequoias have been sent to Manila, P. I., Honolulu, Washington, D. C., Maryland, Indiana, Oklahoma and California points. Sequoia is declared the only national park which has devoted attention to having its own nursery where trees and shrubs native to the park are raised. Sequoias at one time grew in many countries of the world, but the giganteas are now only found in a belt 250 miles long on the western slopes of the Sierra in California. It will be interesting, park officials say, for future generations to note the growth of these trees that have been transplanted.

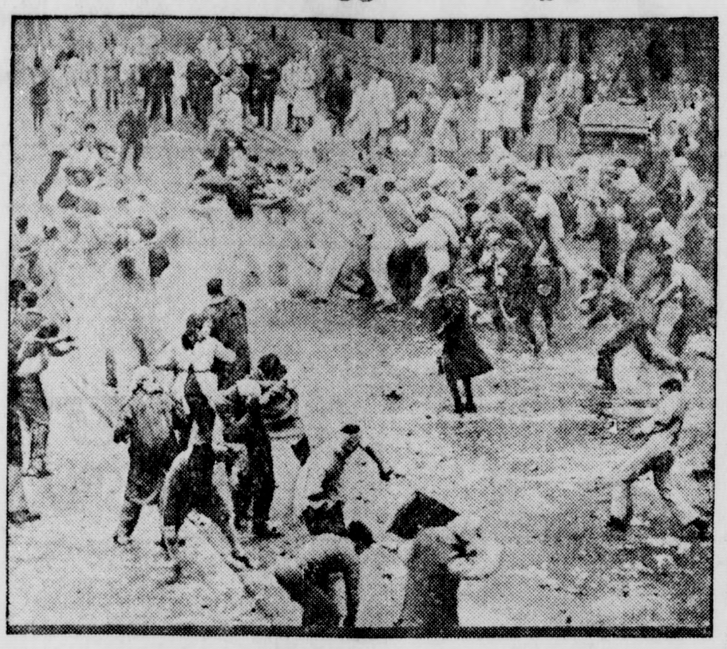
Newly liberalized Department of Commerce regulations for the use of intermediate landing fields may be the means of providing numerous small California communities with airport facilities they could not otherwise afford, if a movement launched at San Francisco recently by the aeronautics department of the State Chamber of Commerce attains success. The additional ports, according to Emory Bronte, pilot and chairman of the state chamber's landing fields sub-committee, would at the same time provide needed additional pieces suitable for emergency landings along the route of established airlines. With twenty-seven communities throughout the state now enjoying the benefits of the commerce department's new ruling opening its intermediate airfields to aviation activities other than mere emergency uses, it is Bronte's hope that the department may now be persuaded to establish additional such fields with funds the department has at hand.

Gasoline-tax collections for January totaled $3,035,629, a loss of 8.7 per cent, compared with an average for the first three months of 1931, it was announced recently by the State Board of Equalization. "Weather conditions last month," said the board's report, "undoubtedly were the chief cause of the loss." The board publicly approves the manner in which the monthly collection law, passed by the last Legislature, is working. "Although a few minor changes, suggested by experience in administering the new act in the past nine months, may be presented to the 1933 Legislature," says its statement, "we can proclaim the gasoline-tax law as being as nearly perfect as a taxing statute can be. By this we refer only to the ease of administration and not to the merit, or lack of it, in various proposals to divert gasoline-tax funds from highway purposes to other uses." Out of 102,209,761 gallons of gasoline assessed for January, thirty-one companies reported taxable distributions in excess of 300,000 gallons each.

Greetings from the Prince of Wales in recognition of the proposed Baden-Powell world Boy Scout camp to be established as an integral part of International Park, have been received by Guy Bogart, of Beaumont, founder of the park. The letter, on royal stationery, was sent from St. James Palace.

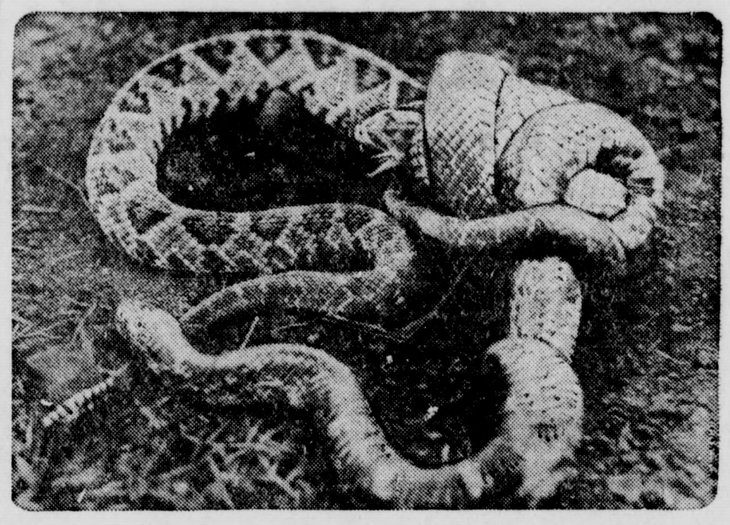
The Navy has awarded a $310,500 contract to Robert E. McKee, Los Angeles for the construction of an administration building barracks and dispensary at the Sunnyvale Naval Air Station.

Battling With Eggs and Vegetables



WHEN the sophomores and freshmen of Liverpool university put on their annual battle their ammunition includes eggs, tomatoes, oranges and even flour. Above is a view of the desperate conflict at the peak of the excitement.

King Snake Kills Tropical Rattler



BROOKLYN Museum's Brazil expedition staged an international reptile battle at Marajo, largest of the Amazon delta islands, and one of the pictures taken by Emerson Smith, the expedition's camera man, is shown above. A common American king snake was taken to Brazil and pitted against a tropical rattler, which he killed and swallowed. Having bent the rattler's neck back upon itself, the king snake (foreground) is here administering a constrictive coup de grace to its strangling antagonist. While the victorious king snake is harmless to man, the vanquished tropical rattler is the deadliest and most aggressive of the entire genus.

PETER'S HEART IS IN HIS MOUTH

OF COURSE not! And of course no one ever does really and truly have his heart in his mouth. But if you ever have been terribly frightened probably you have felt as if your heart were in your month, or at any rate in your throat. Peter Rabbit is quite positive that his heart has jumped quite into his mouth more than once. You couldn't make him believe anything else. He would tell you that it is his heart and he ought to know, if anybody does, where his heart is and what it does. You see, Peter is like a very great many people—set in his opinions.

So it would be quite useless to tell him that his heart wasn't really in his mouth that night when he stole from the brush heap to the old stump and then to the young hemlock tree again right in plain sight of Hooty the Owl had Hooty but turned his head at the right time. He is positive it was.

Hooty sat on the top of his watch tower, which, as you know, was a tall dead tree. So still he sat and so straight that he looked in the moonlight like part of the tree itself. His great yellow eyes were fixed on the little hole in an old log into which he had chased Shadow the Weasel. He was waiting for Shadow to come out. Once in a while he turned his head without moving his body at all until he could look straight behind him. Then it seemed as if his head had been put on his shoulders hindside before. He would look behind him this way for an instant just to make sure that there was no one moving there. Then his head would snap around back in a flash, and he would once more fix his great, fierce, hungry-looking eyes on the old log in which Shadow had found safety.

His Great Yellow Eyes Were Fixed on the Little Hole in an Old Log Into Which He Had Chased Shadow the Weasel.

Peter waited until Hooty had looked back this way and then the very instant Hooty's head flew around so that he could watch for Shadow, Peter started across for the old stump. He hurried. Oh, yes, indeed, he hurried! But he took the greatest care not to make a sound. It was then, he says, that his heart was in his mouth. If it wasn't there he doesn't know where it was, for he is very sure it wasn't where it ought always to be.

When he reached the old stump he slipped around to the other side and squatted down close to it. Then he took a long breath, for you know he had held his breath all the way across that open place. "So far, so good," thought Peter. "Hooty can't see me behind this stump. Now, if I can reach that little hemlock tree, I guess I'll be safe from him."

He peeped around the old stump to watch Hooty. He saw Hooty look behind him and then, satisfied that there was no one in sight, turn back to watch for Shadow. Once more holding his breath Peter started for the little hemlock tree. Just as he slipped under it he stepped on a dry stick sticking above the snow and it broke with a tiny snap. It was a very little sound, but instantly Hooty's head flew around and Peter could just feel those great fierce eyes glaring at the little hemlock tree. This time he thought that his heart would jump right out of his mouth. But Peter was quite under the spreading branches of the little hemlock tree when he had so carelessly stepped on that little dry twig, and Hooty couldn't see him. For a minute he stared very hard, but only for a minute. You see, he didn't dare keep his head turned longer for fear that Shadow would slip out of that old log and get away.

Such a sigh of relief as Peter did give then! He was safe now from Hooty, for the little hemlock tree was tall enough so that Hooty could not see beyond it. "I wish I could get away from Shadow as easily," thought Peter as he hurried away through the Green Forest, lipperty-lipperty-lip. "But just as soon as he gets away from Hooty he will follow my tracks. Oh, dear! What shall I do next?"

THE THINGS EACH DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE little things we do each day
To help to smooth another's way
Have never brought us any fame,
Or any fortune, if it came.
The little things, that only take
A minute, for another's sake,
Our kindnesses, too small amount
To really take into account.

Our fame is much more hardly won
With greater deeds that we have done,
Our fortune must be measured by
Gigandic figures, written high.
The little things we don't put down
To be remembered by the town,
The little things, so small, so plain,
Are done without a thought of gain.

And then some day, our record writ,
St. Peter lets us look at it,
And there we find, beneath our name,
No word of fortune or of fame.
We find instead, to mount the skies
And pass the gates of Paradise,
Requires a record, strange to say,
Of little things we did each day.

Silver Was Safer

Behind a stone in the roof of an old Sussex (England) mansion a workman found a bag containing 400 silver coins of the reigns of Elizabeth and the Stuart kings. A farm worker of Donegal hid a packet of banknotes in the rafters of his cottage, and found, when he went to look for them, that rats had eaten all but a few shreds of them.

FOUR GOOD THINGS

A GOOD dressing for a fat chicken is:

Prune Dressing.

Soak one cupful of prunes over night, drain, stone and chop. Add one cupful of chopped tart apples, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and one cupful of bread crumbs; mix well and add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and stuff the fowl.

Cranberry Sherbet.

Wash and cook two cupfuls of cranberries in water to cover. When soft force through a potato ricer and add two cupfuls of sugar, mix well and add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a pint of rich milk. Freeze as usual.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes.

Take one and one-half pounds of ham cut into convenient sized pieces, four cupfuls of sliced raw potatoes and a pint of well-seasoned white sauce. Place a layer of potatoes in the bottom of a well-greased casserole, using one-third of them, cover with a few slices of onion and one-half of the ham; season with salt and pepper, repeat with the same and have a layer of potatoes on top. Cover all with the white sauce and cover the casserole; bake until all are well done.

Green Pepper and Corn Scallop.

Take two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half cupful of milk, one chopped green pepper, one chopped red pimiento and two cupfuls of fresh or canned corn. Fill a buttered casserole one-third full of the mixture, add one-fourth cupful of fresh bread crumbs buttered, then another layer of corn and peppers and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until well done.

Winner in National Yard and Garden Contest

FIRST prize in class 1 of the 1931 National Yard and Garden contest, it has just been announced, has been awarded to Mrs. Charles A. Emery of Pomona, Calif. In this class all the work must have been done by the family. Mrs. Emery, whose husband is a police sergeant, did practically all the planting and beautification with her own hands, though her three children, who live in the garden most of the time, gave her considerable help and Mr. Emery assisted in the heavy work. Our illustration shows the back yard and, inset, Mrs. Emery and her children. The Emery garden took first place among the west coast entries before winning the national prize.

WOMEN'S RELIEF SOCIETY IN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The National Women's Relief Society of the Balboa ward, L. D. S. church, held their annual conference last Sunday evening in the George Washington Masonic Hall. Bishop R. Vance Pearson presided, and President Agnes Felsch conducted. The opening prayer was offered by First Counselor Rebecca Ashby. A mixed chorus then sang very beautifully "Do You Know My Garden." Presentation of officers were read and sustained by the Secretary, Mary K. Uhlig. President Agnes Felsch gave a short report of the work of the past year, and of the blessing derived from rendering service and helping those in need. The Relief Society trio then sang "The Heavenly Inspiration."

Mrs. Frieda Pietsch gave a ten minute talk on theology. This was followed by a talk by Mrs. Mabel Croft on the teachers's topic, "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself." Another trio number followed, "To a Wild Irish Rose," by McDowell. Mrs. Mary L. Kinkead talked on the value of the Literary lesson as outlined each month. Mrs. Dean White then gave a talk on the value of the social service lesson and discussed some of the benefits gained by the personality study as outlined in "Overstreet's Influencing Behavior." Mrs. Nelson, member of the Stake board, then stressed the value of seeking the good in others and overlooking the little faults, then give loving and willing service when called. Bishop Pearson next spoke on the Relief Society co-operating loyally with the caring for the sick and poor in the ward. The Relief Society of the church is the oldest women's organization existing in the United States, having been organized nearly ninety years ago, and is still functioning in the same splendid manner in giving relief and uplifting the moral standard of the people.

The closing song by the congregation was "Flag of the Free." The benediction was offered by Second Councilor Mrs. Pauline Peterson.

"THE FIRST MRS. FRASER" COMING TO THE CURRAN

To those who love the theatre there is magic in the names connected with "The First Mrs. Fraser," the witty comedy of divorce and re-marriage which brings the illustrious American star, Grace George, to the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, Monday, March 7.

St. John Ervine, the noted author, is known to American theatregoers by two fine serious plays, "John Ferguson" and "Jane Clegg," and by his comedy, "Mary, Mary Quite Contrary." Miss George, who is designated as our leading exponent of the art of high comedy, is identified with "Divorcons," "The Ruined Lady," "She Had to Know," and many other successes by such playwrights as George Bernard Shaw, J. M. Barrie and Clyde Fitch.

Miss George's chief supporting player is A. E. Mathews, one of the first line actors of the American stage, who will be remembered in "Spring Cleaning," "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," and "Serena Blandish," among other Broadway hits. Another sterling player, Reginald Mason, who was seen here in support of William Gillette, is co-featured with Mr. Mathews. Ruth Benson Blinn, widow of the late Holbrook Blinn, and John Halloran were also in the original New York cast of "The Frist Mrs. Fraser," which enjoyed a year's run on Broadway.

The very title of the play has become internationally famous, due to lengthy runs in London and Berlin, as well as in New York City and Chicago. There is a universal appeal in the theme of this comedy, a smartly groomed slice of life in this day and age of divorce. A comedy of genuine substance, it is firmly rooted in character, and bringing a delightful group of new acquaintances in Janet, the first Mrs. Fraser, who understands human nature, the second Mrs. Fraser, frankly out for herself; the twice-marired James, rather bewildered that such a clever fellow as himself has been tricked by a pretty face and gold-digging heart; Philip Logan, who woos Janet with such charm and persistence; Ninian, Murdo, Alice, Mabel—they're all people you'll go home and talk about after they've given you an evening of laughter in the theatre.

students as "Friends of the Quill." Mr. Blackman gave a pleasant talk, and presented three wishes he had for the young journalists. The first wish was that the students should always maintain an interest in life, through success or failure; the second, that the students should acquire the power of expression. He left the third wish for each student to make for himself.

A picture was taken of the whole group at the entrance of the University library for the Stanford Quad.

From 2 to 4 p. m. round table discussions took place on various journalistic problems. After this the business meeting of the Association began in the Little Theatre. Schools were nominated and elected for president, vice-president, second vice-president, and secretary. Palo Alto high school was elected president; Galileo high school, first vice-president; St. Mary's high in Berkeley, second vice-president; and San Mateo, secretary.

Following this meeting, the journalists of all the schools on the peninsula met to discuss forming a Press Association of the Peninsula. A vote was taken on the question and every school represented was in favor of organizing the Association and holding a meeting very soon. Sequoia high will be host at the organizing meeting of the Association.

At 6:30 p. m. a banquet was held for the delegates in the Stanford Union. President Cavanaugh acted as toastmaster. Many well-known journalists spoke. Mr. R. L. Burgess was the speaker of the evening. He delivered a message of vital interest to every student who expects to go into newspaper work after high school and college.

Chapter 194 of the C. S. F. will send three delegates to the C. S. F. convention to be held at Burlingame high school, March 12, it was announced last week by Rose Merlo, president of the Jefferson chapter. Miss Staib will accompany the group as adviser. The three are Mary Conti, Rose Merlo, and Inez Merlo.

The C. S. F., having very few members at present, will attempt to increase its membership by making the aims and principles of the organization known to the freshmen. The local chapter will give a tea for the thirty freshmen who make six points according to the C. S. F. credit system when report cards are issued on March 14.

The following information is for the benefit of those students desiring admission to the C. S. F.: Ten points is necessary for admission. An A in a solid counts three points, a B one point. In non-solids, one-half the above is given.

At a sophomore meeting held Thursday, Eleanor Bodien was retained as president.

In submitting her resignation, she stated that, due to a recent illness, she would be unable to take an active part in social affairs.

Miss Staib, sophomore adviser, however, said she thought that President Bodien was capable of carrying on her official duties, if not those of a social nature.

As a motion was made that Eleanor be retained, a hand vote was held, and the class decided unanimously that she remain president.

The class will attend a roller skate at the Golden Gate Ballroom Friday. Students are to meet at the "top o' the hill" at 6:30 p. m.

New pictures of George Washington have been added to each room in the school. As many pictures as were needed were presented by the U. S. government to every school in the United States. Only the picture itself was donated, but the framing was made in Los Angeles, framed by Duncan Vail and Company. The work was paid for by the Board of Trustees.

Only five pictures with a glass covering were made. These pictures were made especially for the laboratories and for the auto shop. The pictures are copies of an unfinished portrait of the Father of our Country.

Illustrating that one can prove anything by an isolated case, Odd McIntyre notes that Paul Troubetzkoy, the artist, who used to bend silver dollars double and tear whole decks of cards apart with his fingers, attributed his great strnegth to the fact that he was a vegetarian. But McIntyre adds that Count von Luckner, who is a voracious meat eater, can do the same thing.

Dr. Donald Laird, of Colgate University, declares as a result of experiments that obnoxious noises have a bad effect upon the digestion, and we agree. A radio crooner upsets our stomach every time.

Add up the advantages:—The cost of operating an Automatic Gas Water Heater, the cost of the heater itself, the easy terms, and its convenience. Your answer will be:—An Automatic is not a luxury but one of the most important necessities for healthful, happy home life. You simply turn the faucet any time for a tubful of hot water for bathing or a basinful for shaving. No waiting, no bother.

Plenty of Automatic Hot Water dissolves dirt from 2 to 20 times faster. That saves your energy. You do not wait for water to heat. So you save time. Studies have been made which show that Automatic Hot Water saves from 4 to 6 hours each week. These hours are yours for reading, shopping, or entertaining.

Well-Made Water Heaters

You can buy an Automatic Gas Water Heater for 50% less than you could in 1917. Yet the new, improved Automatics are colorful and better built. As for the terms, they are as low as $4.85 down and $3.85 a month, with a liberal trade-in allowance for your old non-automatic water heater or water-back. These are the easiest terms ever.

Architects and builders are now specifying Automatics for all modern homes. Bring your home up-to-date by installing one. It is simple and easy to connect to your present plumbing. And remember, Automatic Hot Water costs less per gallon than any other method of heating water in the home.

*According to our gas rates, Automatic Water Heating with Natural Gas saves the average consumer 40%.

THE "WHY" OF DEPRESSION

In a recent copyright article appearing in the San Francisco Chronicle, Leonard P. Ayers, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company, held that rigid economy is the only cure for the depression.

He pointed out that the war cost the participating nations two hundred billion dollars—a sum equal to about $200 a minute from the time of Julius Caesar to that of Herbert Hoover! Most of this money was raised by borrowing against the future.

After the war, all nations decided to make the modern improvements the war had made them desire. This was accomplished by borrowing more billions. The result was a period of expanding indebtedness—which produced a kind of artificial prosperity.

Now the trend is the other way. We have been forced into debt contraction, and our economic troubles have resulted. In past years we mortgaged our future income and the time for paying the piper has come.

Individuals, families, businesses and governments must balance their budgets in order to bring order out of chaos. Waste and extravagance must be eliminated. The depression will pass—but we can not do away with it by a policy of spending that will merely duplicate the period of inflation we have just left behind us.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

To one of humane instincts it is distressing to witness the utter disregard of animal suffering which is shown by thoughtless or vicious persons.

Acts of unnecessary cruelty to dumb animals are an indication of either a lack of education or serious moral defect on the part of those who practice them. Children should be taught very early to treat animals with kindness. Without such teaching a child is very likely to develope cruel tendencies, particularly when the example of unfeeling indifference is set by older persons.

As a prominent educator recently said, any training of education which neglects training in the humane treatment of animals is failing in its duty.

We have noticed another thing: Any person who is cruel to animals will bear watching in all his other relations of life.

ENLIST THE HOME FOR SAFETY

The federal, state and municipal governments may legislate for accident prevention, the police may seek unremittingly to enforce it, schools may teach safety, and associations may advocate it, but really effective results can never be obtained until the American home is enlisted wholeheartedly in the cause.

The home is the keystone of the Nation's safety arch. It is the first line of offense against an enemy which annually kills 100,000 persons, injures 3,000,000 or more, and produces an economic lass running into the millions.

"Nearly one-third of the 560,000 accident fatalities of the last decade actually happened in the homes," says Herbert J. Stack, safety supervisor of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. "That in itself should awaken every household to the necessity of better housekeeping, better care of young children and better safeguards.

"There is an inescapable duty resting upon the heads of the nation's families. In the last analysis they have the responsibility of teaching safety habits and attitudes to the children. What the child absorbs in the home colors its after-life and if lessons there are lax, the child will be found deficient when it comes to safety problems of our modern civilization.

"Accidents are a serious menace to our national life and far-reaching in their effects. Surely, something is wrong when in a single ten years the lives of more than half a million persons, one-fifth of whom are children, can be snufed out. As bad as wars are, if we add together all the deaths of American soldiers on the battlefields during the combats of the last two hundred years of our history, the total will not be that of the loss through accidents during the period named."

AN ALL-STAR CABINET

An interesting, if not particularly edifying, indoor sport is that of picking all-star and all-American teams in football, baseball, and other athletic activities. This practice has been varied slightly by a prominent magazine, which has attempted to select the most capable goverment administration, drawing from all who have held the positions considered.

In all such enterprises there will be a difference of opinion, but here are the magazine's selections, with dates of taking office:

President, George Washington, 1789.

Vice-President, Theodore Roosevelt, 1901.

Secretary of State, John Hay, 1898.

Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, 1789.

Secretary of War, Elihu Root, 1899.

Secretary of Navy, William C. Whitney, 1885.

Attorney-General, Roger B. Taney, 1831.

Postmaster-General, Amos Kendall, 1835.

Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, 1913.

Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, 1897.

Secretary of Commerce, Herbert C. Hoover, 1921.

There having been only three to hold the office of secretary of labor no choice was made.

Students of American history may amuse themselves by looking up the records of executives who have held the offices named and improving on the list given if they can.

WHY WOMEN WORK

The idea that most women and girls get jobs merely to pay for their perfumes and powders, is proved to be all wrong by a recent survey of business and professional women made by the American Woman's Association, in connection with the data sought by the President's emergency committee on employment.

Of the 2,000 members of the American Woman's Association of New York City alone it was revealed by filled out quesionnaires, that 40 per cent support from one to three dependents. Further facts also disclose that the larger the earnings of these women, the more likely they are to be encumbered. Analysis of this tabulation shows that two-thirds of the women who earn between $6,000 and $8,000 contribute to other people's support, and in almost half of these cases the obligation consists of the total maintenance of at least one person.

Further substantiation of the findings of the American Women's Association is offered by a special report issued from the woman's bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor on "What the wage-earning woman contributes to family support." One of these cross-section studies of more than 13,000 women diversely occupied shows that 1.7 per cent were contributing to dependents.

This presents an aspect of "women in work" not generally conceded by those inclined to believe that feminine earners have nobody to think of but themselves.

Mussolini has been given the Order of the Golden Spur, an appropriate decoration for one who has been in the saddle so long.

American movies are blamed for an English prison riot. If they heard some of our radio programs there would be a revolution.

LEAP YEAR

The fact that the earth does not make a revolution around the sun in an even number of days has caused much difficulty in making a calendar that would hold good over any considerable length of time. In fact, such a calendar has never been devised, but the one in present use is accurate enough for practical purposes.

In reforming the calendar in 47 B. C., Julius Caesar considered a year to be 365¼ days, so he advanced a day every four years to take up the fractional excess. But the true year is only 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 45.51 seconds, so in the course of time the Julian calendar, based on a year some 11 minutes too long, became more and more inaccurate. To correct this, Pope Gregory in 1582 caused ten days to be dropped from the calendar, and also modified the rule for leap years by omitting the extra day from the ending year of each century except those exactly divisible by 400.

Thus the year 1600 was a leap year, while the years 1700, 1800 and 1900 were not; 2000 will be a leap year, and so on. Even with this correction there will be an error of one day in 3323 years, a discrepancy hardly great enough to worry about.

One disadvantage of leap year is that persons born on February 29 have a real birthday anniversary only once in four years—if that is any disadvantage. Based on the law of averages, only one person in about 1,461 would be thus handicapped.

ENVOYS OF GOOD WILL

Compared with the speed of automobiles, railway trains and airplanes, travel by ships is a relatively slow method of getting about. But the plodding steamer can cover a lot of territory, as some recent statistics show. For example, twenty ships of the Grace Line fleet traveled a total of 1,169,435 miles during the year 1931.

Noting this fact, someone with a flair for mathematics has figured out that this mileage, if "laid end to end," would embrace some magnificent distances, and he gives some more figures by way of illustration, saying:

"The earth is approximately 24,840 miles in circumference at the equator, so the distance spanned by these ships in a year would equal more than forty-six trips around the globe. The silvery moon's mean distance from Mother Earth is about 240,000 miles, so the mileage of these ships is equivalent to four times that distance."

It happens, however, that the Grace Line ships in question, carrying the Panama mail, are navigated at nominal right angles to the equator, except when traversing the canal. Their regular routes lie between New York and San Francisco, touching at seven Spanish-American ports, and between New York and countries along the west coast of South America.

So, while they do not circumnavigate the globe, nor approach the moon, they perform the more useful service of linking the countries of the western hemisphere in the interest of commerce and tourist travel, thus becoming envoys of good will.

THE LETHAL SUBMARINE

Once more the deadliness of the submarine, even in peace times, has been illustrated by the recent loss of the British M-2 in the English Channel with its entire crew of sixty men. The vessel was engaged in practice exercises with other ships when it dived and failed to come up again. Eight days later it was found on the bottom of the sea, more than 100 feet below the surface.

Although the M-2 was equipped with every known safety device, including individual escape appartus, not a man on board was saved.

This is the fourteenth submarine disaster in the last ten years, the total lives lost being 607. Of these fourteen vessels, Great Britain has lost six; the United States, Japan and Italy two each; France and Russia one each.

This latest submarine tragedy has revived talk of outlawing underwater craft as a feature of armament reduction, but there is little likelihood that this will be done. The nations will probably continue to build these steel tombs and send their young men to die in them like rats in a trap, because the world is not yet sufficiently civilized to abolish war.

GAS GOES FORWARD

Gas is one of those industries which has made consistent progress ever since the turn of the century. When electricity came in as a lighting medium, it was forecast that gas was doomed—but the guessers were mistaken.

The gas stove, refrigerator and central heating find a steadily growing list of users—a list running far into the millions. And in industry gas plays a part in some 20,000 different operations.

The present craze for color will no doubt be reflected by a good many income tax returns this year.

High ecclesiastical honors came to a former newsboy a few days ago when John Gregory Murray was installed as the new Roman Catholic Archbishop of St. Paul with due ceremonies in the presence of many church dignitaries and a gathering of some 6,000 persons. The new archbishop, now 54, as a youngster sold newspapers on the streets of Waterbury, Conn.

LOCAL CHILDREN PRESENT ENTERTAINING PROGRAM

Gloria, RKO headliner, principal dancer of Delmar Revue, Hollywood Revue and other musical hits, last Friday evening presented a wonderful dancing program at the Daly City Hall, featuring children of Daly City, being assisted by Miss Adela Strudlowski and several of her talented pupils at the piano.

The children of the Gloria Dance Studio participating were: Doris May Rice, Dona May MacCuen, Helen Rice, Geraldine Jones, Geraldine Conover, Ruthie Larsen, Richard King, Jean Hanselman, Dolores Perry, Barbara Foreman, Jean Boyd, Beatrice Borson, Josephine Kolander, Ethel Doughty, Billie Plumbe, Jackie Smith, Bernordine Attinger, Doris Mercurio.

Special number were presented by Ethel Doughty, Billie Plumbe, Doris Mercurio, Josephine Kollander, and Miss Dolores Perry.

Two tiny tots, Billie Plumbe and Doris Mercurio, received hearty applause, as well as Bernardine Attinger and Jackie Smith, in their tuneful song and dance. The Butterfly dance ensemble was a beautiful sight. All the kiddies wore lovely pastel shades and looked like flowers.

Ethel Doughty's old-fashioned gavotte was typical of the eighteenth century. Geraldine Conover, Geraldine Jones, Josephine Kolander, Richard King, Helen Rice and Dona May MacCuen deserve special mention for their perfect execution of tapping.

Miss Billie Plumbe sang the popular song, "Spring-time in the Rockies." She is a marvel for so tiny a tot, and delighted the audience with her dainty stepping. Doris Mercurio's "Wooden Soldier" number stopped the show. It wes cleverly and beautifully costumed.

Throughout the program Miss Adele Strudlowski's piano pupils played musical selections. The audience was delighted at such a display of youthful talent. Little four-year-old Emily Gauze sang "Golden Bears on Parade," a popular air adopted by the University of California, composed by Mr. Victor Navarrett, who was present. Lydia Gauze, Marie Sylvestri, Emily Gauze, Ruth Claverie, Frances Cottrell and Lydia Smigelsky, clever pupils of Miss Strudlowski, delighted the audience with their display of perfect technique and interpretation.

The program ended with a toe solo by Gloria, herself, followed by a duet by Miss Strudlowski and a pupil.

SOMETHING NEW

Radio controlled appartus has been perfected to enable an automobile owner to open the doors of his garage as he approaches it by pulling a knob on his car's instrument board.

Railway car wheels have been invented with rubber cushions surrounding their hubs to absorb shocks.

The lower shelf of a new tea wagon can be removed and added to the top to convert it into a card table.

Of German invention is a motor driven pump for fighting fires that has a capacity of 20,000 gallons of water an hour and is light enough for two persons to carry.

Employees of power companies working about dangerous electrical equipment are provided with many rubber safety devices, including insulated suits.

A new boiler produces steam without first boiling the water and operates at the tremendous pressure of 3,500 pounds to the square inch.

To enable airports to measure accuately the height of coluds above the ground, a powerful searchlight has been made which utilizes a comparatively small bulb.

A German has invented a telescoping pole on which a photographer can elevate a camera.

Matches may be waterproofed by dipping the heads in a creamy solution made by dissolving shellac and denatured alcohol.

Outboard motors that can be attached to gliders to convert them into airplanes have been invented.

Partially transparent shoes, duplicating in dimensions regular lines of footwear, have been perfected in France, to be tried on in stores to determine the fit of those to be purchased.

A motor propelled boat that an Austrian engineer has designed to roll over the water on five large cylinders has attained a speed of 60 miles an hour under favorable conditions.

Electrically heated tanks on a novel truck delivers oil and water to airplanes at a temperature that shortens the time required to warm up their motors.

Of Italian invention for use over rough ground is a motorcycle driven by an endless tread tractor.

Airplane wings that can be expanded or contracted to meet varying flying conditions have been introduced by a Californian.

A portable headlight tester that can be used in daylight has been invented to adjust automobile lights so that their rays will strike the ground at and desired distance from the car.

Red flare signals have been specially designed to protect motorists who are obliged to stop along roads at night to change tires.

A rubber sponge for washing autohobiles that can be fastened to garden hose is the idea of a New Jersey inventor.

A Los Angeles man has invented an airplane in which the angle of its single wing can be changed at will by its pilot to alter its lateral stability to suit flying conditions.

To transport freight from manufacturer to consumer with a minimum of handling a new York engineer has designed enclosed trucks to be loaded astride specially designed railroad flat-cars without removing the wheels.

The invention of an Iowa man, a new highway repairing machine digs up the surfaces of old gravel roads as it passes over them, mixes the material with a bituminous binder and relays the mixture.

Knobs resembling gigantic thumb tacks have been introduced to be inserted in traffic signs painted on highways to warn motorists by slighly jolting cars passing over them.

A control arrangement has been invented with which different radio stations are automatically tuned in at designated times, picking up their programs through an entire evening.

Operated with a crank, a machine has been perfected to make crushed ice from the cubes frozen in refrigerators.

So that singers can read their music in the darkness of television broadcasting studios, an artist has devised self-luminous manuscripts.

A new hydraulic brake is said to stop the heaviest airplane within 300 feet after landing.

Unbreakable spectacle lenses have been invented, made of two pieces of glass cemented to a thin sheet of celluloid.

A microphone to be mounted on a steering wheel and connected to a voice amplifier outside an automobile has been designed by an Englishman to replace warning horns.

Of German invention is a pocket pencil that serves as a pistol, firing bullets when a knob is pressed.

The head of a new hammer unscrews, revealing a chuck to hold a number of small tools carried in its handle.

For measuring the fatigue of workers a machine has been perfected that records their involuntary movements on a gauge as they stand on a small platform.

A door lock has been invented that records the time it is opened and the number of the key used.

A French inventor's device for automatically timing racing automobiles is operated by the light from an ordinary headlight falling on a photo-eelectric cell.

A machine has been designed for peeling oranges in large quantities without injuring the pulp and obtaining a large proportion of the juice.

A novel rowboat is made in four sections that can be taken apart and nested compactly for transportation in an automobile.

Jets of compressed air ejected from the nose and tail help to steer a new Italian dirigible balloon that is 180 feet long.

A San Francisco man has invented a machine that can be attached to a piano to write music in standard characters on a paper ribbon as a composer plays it.

An alloy has been developed for spark plug electrodes that requires a much lower sparking voltage than commercial electrode wire and also resists corrosion.

A photo-electric relay has been designed for limiting the use of electric lights in buildings to the actual time they are needed.

When not being used for its intended purpose a new breakfast table and seats for several persons folds to become a china closet.

To avoid corrosion of automobile battery terminals, felt pads impregnated with oil are now provided for connections.

Electrically operated depth sounding apparatus invented in England for deep water fishermen indicates the character of the bottom of the sea and warns of obstructions.

PRECEDING EVENTS

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, near Newburgh. Bertolini discharges him. Friendless and "broke," he is offered $10,000 by a man he knows only as "Martin" to impersonate a liquor runner facing arrest. It means the penitentiary, but Joe is desperate. He defers decision until the next night, and is given $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $300 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. A circus attracts him. Outside a tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to join the circus, but Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, under arrest, Joe is identified by men who had seen him the night before near Newburgh, when two prohibition agents were killed and robbed. Joe finds he is charged with their murder and robbery. He realizes "Martin's" object—to have him found guilty of the murders, executed, and the case closed. A man known as "Fullhouse," waiter at Bertolini's, hurts Joe's case by his evidence. Joe keeps silent as to his previous day's doings, fearing to embarrass Sue Dayton. Pete Maxwell, a detective, appears friendly, but Joe fears everybody. His cellmate, Hymie Fradke gives Joe $20.

Now and then new men came to take the place of those who had departed, some handcuffed, one in an Oregon boot, a heavy, block-like thing of steel which fitted about his ankle and which he dragged with effort. They brought him in and unfastened the heavy burden for a brief rest while he was in the cage; Joe watched them with wide eyes. He'd never seen a man trussed like this. Steadily the calls came, for prisoner after prisoner; one by one they passed forth until only three men remained in the big, steel-wire cage, a voluble Italian, Joe Barry and the blocky, black-featured man who slouched there, one foot extended as if in constant waiting for the heavy steel handicap, now lying in disuse upon the floor. Then they came for the Italian and took him forth. A second guard entered, closed the door behind him and, motioning to the blocky prisoner, began the affixing of the Oregon boot that he might be ready for his summons. But as he raised it to snap about the extended ankle, he paused, and listened, his head turned sharply toward the outer courtroom door.

There came the swift, deep cracking of revolvers, not one but a dozen; a frosted door panel tingled and spread its crashing glass to the floor. There were shouts, the sound of many running forms, the wild cry of some one cursing above the clatter of gunfire; a third shot took half the glass from the transom, and with that the guard clicked the lock of the Oregon boot, swung to his feet, and with a leap, reached the cage door. He unlocked it, he swung it wide and darted through, then with the over-strength of excitement, slammed it heavily behind him, and ran forth to the corridor, not looking back. Joe Barry moved forward. The door had struck and rebounded too swiftly for the snap-lock to find its receptacle; now it swung wide to its full extent, struck against its stop and then moved lazily back on the rebound. A form passed Joe; it was the prisoner in the Oregon boot. But he did not seek flight. He merely stood there and as the door came to the jam, his big hand closed over it, meshing it into its proper position. Joe Barry turned away; like an animal he had seen a cage door wide open before him, like an animal he had been afraid to risk what freedom held for him.

Wilder grew the sounds from outside; a hundred voices shouting now. There were more shots—from the side of the mezzanine corridor, from the rotunda, from the stairway, where some one evidently stood at bay.

"Look out!" It was one voice above all the rest. "He's got a shot left! You, up there on the mezzanine, pull down on him!"

Then another voice sounded.

"Close in on him, down there in the rotunda."

Then a lone shot came from the stairway, followed immediately by the booming of a dozen guns. The man in the Oregon boot looked swiftly about him, toward the policemen, guards and attaches in the rotunda, struggling with the street mob which now was flooding into the building. The big muscles of his right shoulder bunched. Joe, staring, saw him slowly pull back the door.

"All right, kid!" he commanded. "Lam it!"

Joe gasped. The door had been closed, yet now it was open; dazedly he understood. That great hand had raised just in time to catch it and hold the hasp a fraction of an inch from its receptacle. Now, it stood open, beckoning—

"Lam it!"

"But you?"

"Me?" The prisoner grinned. "With this?" He eyed the steel boot on his right ankle. Suddenly he scowled. "Lam it, I said. Think you can wait all day!"

His free arm went forth and caught Joe by the shoulder, whirling him through the door.

"Keep your head!" he whispered. "Jam in with the crowd and let 'em ease you out!"

Mincing, furtive, Joe reached the corridor. Some one caught him by an arm, swinging him angrily about, and half throwing him against a crowd of others much the same as he, milling forms being herded by excited men in uniform.

"Out of the building, there!" a voice sounded. "Make it snappy. Out of the building!"

Another policeman caught him, and pushed him forward. He half turned Joe about, so that he could look toward the broad, castle-like stairway. The crowd there had parted for an instant, to reveal the sprawled form of a man. A sleek man, with form-fitting clothing and gleaming hair. The head was rolled back, the eyes open, staring upon things they could not see. Hymie Fradke had kept his boast. He had beaten Dannemora.

"Go go, go on—don't stand around all day!" They were moving Joe again, with a hundred others.

Joe obeyed. Now he was on the last tier, now on the sidewalk.

"Keep moving you—off the block!" A mounted man had ridden to the curbing and was waving a gloved hand at the throng there. "Off the block!"

Joe Barry went on. At the end of the block he passed more mounted men; a car rounded the corner before him, its siren screaming, its tonneau loaded with policemen. Then a patrol went clanging by. Joe Barry walked on.

Within his brain, there dinned and shrieked the command to run. His nerves twitched with the desire. He could all but hear the words: "Run—run—for G—d's sake, run!"

But the man only continued to walk, with the thousands of other free persons who cluttered the sidewalks, he only continued to look about him with narrow, frightened eyes, he only licked at his lips and walked on. Far uptown, an hour later, wearied by repression, his legs aching from the exertion which had held them to a strolling stride, Joe halted as he passed a small crowd before a radio store. A voice was shouting at him from the throat of the loud-speaker.

Hymie Fradke Had Kept His Boast He Had Beaten Dannemora.

"Station WNYC Police Alarms. During a desperate effort at freedom today at Criminal Courts building, Hymie Fradke, twenty-eight, New York gangster, was killed by police when he attempted to shoot his way out with a revolver slipped to him by a confederate in the hallway as Fradke was being led from a detention room to the courtroom for trial. During the confusion resulting, a man believed also to be a confederate of Fradke's escaped from a detention cage in magistrate's court. His description follows: Joe Barry, twenty-four, dark hair and eyes, height five feet nine, weight one hundred and forty-five—"

Joe Barry looked up. A few feet away, stood a man in blue and brass, diligently taking down the description in a much-handled notebook. The voice above ceased, giving way to the lilt of a jazz orchestra. The policeman opened his coat and tucked the memorandum within. Joe Barry licked his lips. Then they both walked on.

Here's a new bride story in which we find friend husband mournfully at a pile of stodgy dough.

"Why, darling," he ventured to remark after a painful pause, "this bread isn't cooked at all!"

"I know it isn't," admitted the bride gloomily, "and for the life of me I can't understand it. I put in lots and lots of baking powder but it doesn't seem to have baked at all."

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

SOME one has made the wise-crack that if two or more men meet anywhere in the world and one of them is an Englishman, he will immediately get busy and organize a club, the insinuation being, of course, that the Englishman is by nature a "joiner." Even if that were true, the fact remains that he has little, if anything, on his American cousin in this respect. For reliable statistics show that there are in the United States more than 125,000 lodges or fraternal organizations which should presumably satisfy the longing of the majority of Americans for "belonging." But that doesn't take into account the innumerable clubs, societies, associations and other organizations and rare indeed is the American who doesn't belong to one or more of these.

All of these, of course, are organized for a "purpose"—social, political, civic, business, scientific, professional, patriotic and honorary—and those purposes are earnestly fostered by millions of earnest Americans. And some of these earnest Americans are so interested in fostering those earnest purposes that they make an earnest effort to see how many of them they can join—and then base their claim to fame on the number of organizations to which they belong.

But if some aforesaid earnest American becomes just a bit tired of his membership in clubs which have a "purpose," he still has an outlet for his "joining" proclivities in some organizations which are not so purposeful. These are the ones which have sometimes been designated as "freak and fun clubs," and it is with this type of organization that this article deals. So if you are a "joiner" and are looking for other club worlds to conquer, take a look at the list at the head of this article and decide which one you would like to join. Of course, the qualifications for some of them may be a bit difficult for you to meet, but if you aren't eligible for one, you may be for another.

For instance, if you aren't a white person, six feet and one inch tall or more, you'd be almost instantly blackballed if you applied for membership in the National Society of Long Fellows or the Six-Foot association. The National Society of Long Fellows was started several years ago by Phil E. Zimmerman of Topeka, Kan., when he was hotel commissioner of the Sunflower state. Since that time the club has grown so rapidly that there are now several thousand members throughout the United States.

Some of the objectives of the club are to get longer bath tubs, shirts, sox and other clothing, higher awnings, signs and ceilings, bigger seats in theaters and leg-room between the rows, restaurant tables that do not require the Long Fellow to hold them up with his knees and pullman berths in which they can sleep without doubling up like a jackknife.

Among members are John Aasen of Los Angeles, Calif., who heads the list with a height of eight feet, nine and one-quarter inches. Next tallest is Clif Thompson of Wisconsin, who is eight feet and six inches. Three seven-footers are O. R. Williams of Oklahoma and Ruth Duncan and Forest Glenn of Illinois. Mr. Williams is seven feet and five inches, Miss Duncan is seven feet and one inch tall, and Mr. Glenn is half an inch taller than she. Ten-year-old Robert Wadlow of Alton, Ill., is a member. Robert is six feet and eleven inches tall.

If your personal appearance doesn't qualify you for that one, perhaps an absence of hair on your head will make you a Knight of the Gleaming Skull in the Bald Head Club of America. That club was started away back in 1900 when Paul Meade, a lawyer of New York, took a photograph of six bald-headed men seated on the steps of John Belden's store in Falls Village, Conn. By chance a copy of this photograph fell into the hands of John Rodemeyer, a Greenwich, Conn., newspaper man. And presto! John then and there formed a club. Now it has more than 1,000 members and at every annual banquet some member gives a stirring speech on "Hair Tonics Which Bald-Headed Barbers Sell to Bald-Headed Boobs" or some such subject. (P. S. If you're addicted to covering your baldness with outlandish headgear, then there's a place for you in the Society of Men who Wear Funny Hats).

Ever go to the circus? "Sure!" you answer. "Go every year—don't care much about it myself, but I have to take the children." But just because you're a regular attendant, it doesn't mean that you're eligible for membership in the Circus Fans of America—not unless at some time in your juvenile career you earned you way into the show by carrying water for the elephant. Karl Kae Knecht, an Indiana newspaper cartoonist, who founded the C. F. A. some five years ago, is authority for the statement that many successful men of today are proud of the fact that they once served the thirsty pachyderms and they're enthusiastic members of this club.

In a certain New York restaurant there's an unusual booth for diners. Over the entrance of what appears to be a tent are the words "Side Show," and adorning the front are two large, gaudy circus banners. One boldly announces—"Nono—the Wild Girl—She Speaks No Language—Playmates are Deadly Serpents." Another heralds "La Belle Rosa—Flower of the Orient—Queen of the Deserts—Favorite of Sultans." Inside the tent are painted banners, posters and photographs of circus performers and freaks.

This side show tent is the luncheon meeting place of the "P. T. Barnum Top No. 1 of the Circus Fans of America." Each state and large city has its "Tent" or "Top" named for some famous circus man.

The organization is primarily for fun, yet it has a serious purpose, say its members—that is, to "help the circus toward bigger and better things." Fans and lovers and friends of the circus are banded together to see it perpetuated, and are eager that greater glory may come to the tented shows.

If you missed out on the juvenile joy just mentioned, perhaps you used to pump a pipe organ. If so, your name can be spread on the roll of the Guild of Former Organ Pumpers, an association composed of those who, by their pledged statements, pumped a pipe organ in a church or chapel at some time in their youth. Its principal aim is serious—"to perpetuate the memories of our decadent but honorable profession and to save for posterity some permanent evidence of the important part the pumper played in the musical and ecclesiastical progress of the ages." It has other aims—"to encourage the singing of the old hymns at Sunday night gatherings" and "to prove that every successful man did not earn his first dollar selling newspapers"—but its primary purpose is to achieve a belated recognition.

The guild was launched in 1926 under the favorable auspices of a natural divinity—"Aeolus, the Greek God and Keeper of the Winds"—and with the slogan, "Pump, for the Wind Is Fleeting." The first meeting was held in New York city in 1928. Officers, named after the stops on the organ, were elected. And the roster of members now holds the names of some of America's foremost citizens.

Will Hays, the czar of the movies, did his pumping on a pipe organ in Sullivan, Ind., his birthplace. He received 10 cents for his efforts, and the dime was paid him at the conclusion of the morning church service. His mother then led him by the hand to his Sunday school class, where he placed the money in the usual collection.

James Couzens, United States senator from Michigan, pumped in the Presbyterian church at Chatham, Ont. He was paid $5 a year. He pumped conscientiously for two years. At the end of that time he collected the $10 he had coming, and this was a part of the original money he invested in stock of the Ford Motor company, which eventually made him one of the nation's richest men.

The late Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was also a pumper. He labored in the Presbyterian church at Springfield, Ill., and gladly accepted the 25-cent weekly stipend which was turned over quarterly.

But if in your youth you didn't turn an honest penny by pumping an organ, perhaps you did it in a printing office as a helper to the printer-publisher of the home town paper. If that was far enough back, you probably "pulled" a George Washington hand press, a bit of back-breaking labor necessary in the old days if the newspaper-reading public was to be kept informed on the affairs of the community. If you did this, then you're eligible for membership in the Ancient and Honorable Order of G. Wash. Pullers, a society founded at the suggestion of Harry C. Webster, an old Missouri "print," which carries on its membership rolls the name of a number of men who have risen high in the field of journalism and who are proud to say that they got their start in newspaper work at the lever of an old G. Wash.

Then there's the Cub Reporters' association, composed of men who as young journalists sought the adventure which is popularly supposed to be found in newspaper work, found it, perhaps, and now in the midst of busy middle age look back fondly upon the time when they toiled under the lash of a "Simon Legree city editor" and dreamed the dream of all cub reporters—that of "scooping the world on a big story."

Anyone who has been the victim of horseplay, hazing, kidding and razzing or even torture by the old-time, hard-boiled, demon city editor is eligible for membership. In the '90s quick hangings, dough prize fighting and "horrible crimes" meant hardships and toil for the cub reporter. He "hot-footed" it around for news, bumping into all sorts of hard and trying experiences. In the '90s barrooms were popular community centers, and crimes were jobs for reporters to solve.

Still in the field of journalism, there are the Fossils—old newspaper men who as boys engaged in amateur journalism and are proud of their boyish efforts. And although such a society has not yet been formed, any newsppaer man will tell you that there's a field for an organization to be known as the Association of Those Who Used to Be Newspaper Men Themselves.

Are you a radio DX-er? Do you sit up late at night "getting" new stations over your radio, either shore wave or long wave? Then you can be initiated into the Royal Order of Hard-Boiled Owls with Rubber Ears with the howling ceremonies which mark such an initiation.

Do you enjoy breaking the ice in a river, lake or pond and taking a bath there no matter what the weather may be? The Polar Bear club wants to hear from you, if you do. Do you ever subber frub hay feber? (Ker-choo!) The Hay Fever association will be glad to send you a membership application blank.

Do you have unlimited faith in the woodchuck as an accurate weather prophet? So do the members of the Slumbering Ground Hog lodge, located at Quarryville, Pa. Organized by George W. Hensel, Jr., who is Hibernating Governor, this lodge has for its chief aim to extol the virtues of the groundhog, which, they say, "has an intelligence of a higher order than that of any other animal from the tick of the blackberry to the elephant in the jungle" and they take an oath to "defend him, his family and his reputation, and to guard him as he slumbers."

It's not easy to get into this lodge for you have to be elected by the seven patriarchs after seven years of observation by the Defender of the Faith, the Chief Eye Rubber, the Patriarch de Luxe, the Bondless Treasurer and other officers. But once you are elected, you can join in the annual ceremony on February 2 around the groundhog's hole.

If you believe that there's more than one name for the colored boys who look after your comfort on the pullman cars, then you should join the Society for the Prevention of Calling Sleeping Car Porters "George." Organized by George W. Dulany, Jr., a Chicago banker, the society now has thousands of members all over the country; George Washington and George Dewey are their patron saints; George Ade is the poet laureate; George M. Cohan, the official song writer; George William, Cardinal Mundelein, the chaplain; Georges Clemenceau was French charge d'affaires; and George ("Babe") Ruth is sergeant at arms.

All of the foregoing are organizations to which almost anyone might possibly belong. But there are also others whose membership is necessarily rather limited to the certain professions. For instance, you'd have to be a sailor in the United States navy in order to belong to the Ancient, Honorable and Mystic Order of Lapa Lapa, although there are many landlubbers who are eminently fitted for membership. The only qualification the prospective member must possess is that he humbly acknowledge that he is a poor fish. But only sailors know how to initiate candidates properly, for it was two sailors who founded the organization at Shanghai, China, in 1927, and sailors are keeping the order going.

You couldn't belong to the Quiet Birdmen unless you were a World war aviator nor to the Caterpillar club unless you were an aviator who had to make an emergency parachute jump to save your life, and you would be barred from membership in the Whosit club unless you were a New York bond salesman engaged in selling municipal bonds.

The list of these interesting organizations could be extended indefinitely were it not for the fact that the author of this article has just received notice of a meeting of those interested in forming a Society for the Prevention of Forming More Societies and he feels obligated to leave at once to attend the meeting.

Racik, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Hamberg, Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rudolph, Miss B. Glazier, Miss M. Baker, Mr. Arthur Gamma, Mr. Rodney Glazier and Mr. William Zari.

Mrs. J. Cosbie, of Bellevue avenue, spent last Wednesday in Redwood City.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wegner and son Fred, of Crocker avenue, accompanied by John Flege, motored to Sunnyvale last Sunday.

The next meeting and social of La Fiesta Club will be held this Friday evening at the home of Miss Elsie Fahey, on Bellevue avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wall were dinner guests last Monday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Martinelli, at their home in the Richmond district.

William Roberts, who is attending U. C., enjoyed a delightful visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Roberts, of Winchester street, last week end.

Mrs. Wilson, of Crocker avenue, is now convalescing at her home after having undergone a very serious operation recently in St. Luke's Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wall were dinner guests, last Tuesday, of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Grieder, at their home in San Francisco. After dinner bridge was enjoyed.

Mrs. M. Wegner, of Crocker avenue, accompanied her son Fred on a delightful motor trip through the Santa Cruz mountains on Friday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, of Divisadero street, San Francisco, were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Swan, of Peoria street, last Sunday.

Last Sunday, Betty Lorraine Valentino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Valentino, celebrated her first birthday, and received many beautiful gifts from friends and members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Grantham and son Richard, of Hanover street, accompanied by William Digman, spent last Sunday in Burlingame, where they were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Anderson, of Paloma avenue.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lorenz, Miss Alice Lorenz, Messrs. Pete Pavlos and Walter Cruchoff, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gross, of San Francisco, spent a most enjoyable time at Yosemite, enjoying the winter sports. On their way home they attended the dog races at Merced.

The Swan Brothers, who reside on Peoria and Hanover street, have moved from their former place of business in the Mission to Valencia street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth. Their many friends in Daly City wish them success in their new place of business.

The tree planting exercises to be held under the auspices of the Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association are to be held at 1:30 P. M. next Tuesday. The tree will be planted in memory of Luther Burbank, the plant wizard. Anyone who is interested in school work is cordially invited to attend.

Rev. J. Walker, of Southern California, who was the pastor at Grace Presbyterian church twenty years ago, visited Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Landini, of Winchester street, Tuesday of last week. Mr. Walker, who was on his way to Philadelphia, visited many of his old friends in Daly City.

The local friends of Mrs. Stella Day, of Oakland, formerly a resident of Daly City, extend their sympathy in the recent death of Mrs. Day's father, Mr. W. Kelley, retired army man of San Francisco, who was laid to rest last Saturday in the Presido. Mr. Kelley was also survived by another daughter, Miss Adeline Kelley, of San Francisco.

The membership of General Pershing Parent-Teachers' Association will hold an afternoon whist at the home of Mrs. L. Landini, fourth vice-president of the Seventeeth District, at 408 Winchester street, on March 9. Score cards and refreshments included will be 35 cents. A committee has been very busy making arrangements for this affair, so come and help a very worthy cause.

The Old Homestead Bakery, at Nineteenth and Howard streets, San Francisco, is to be host to the San Mateo County Firemen, their families and friends, on Tuesday evening, March 15, the firemen being invited to bring their friends. The program is to start at 7:39 P. M., at which time the guests are to be shown through the entire Homestead Bakery. After that a light repast is to be served, to be followed by dancing.

The musicians of San Francisco are sponsoring a grand ball, to be held in the Civic Auditorium on Friday evening, March 11. It is announced that the music will be furnished by an orchestra of sevnty-five pieces, under the direction of Paul Ash, Walter Roesner, Claude Sweeten, Anson Weeks, Phil Harris, Tom Gerun, Joe Mendel, Rube Wolff, John Wolohan, Mahlon Merrick and all the popular radio and dance stars of San Francisco.

ANNOUNCE VESPER SERVICES AT LOCAL METHODIST CHURCH

On account of the "New Crusade" being held at Grace-Trinity church on Twenty-first and Capp streets, there will be a Vesper service at 6 o'clock in the Daly City Methodist church, instead of the usual service at 8, from now until Easter. This will give opportunity for any who wish to attend and participate in this very inspiring and helpful campaign. Dr. George Wood Anderson is the evangelist in charge of the campaign, and those who have already heard him will want to hear him often in these weeks preceding Easter.

Services are held every morning at 10 o'clock, and every evening at 7:30. The subject of the sermon at the 6 o'clock service in our local Methodist church will be "Christ's Message to the Aged."

A "golden wedding party" was celebrated last Monday in the home of Wilfred E. Bundy, of Seventeenth avenue, San Francisco. The "bridal couple," Mr. and Mrs. Harlow E. Bundy, of Tacoma, came to San Francisco to celebrate their anniversary with their son and other children. Those present at the dinner and reception were Wilfred Bundy, Mrs. Ethel Laurens, of Irvington street, Daly City, B. C. Bundy and Earl Bundy, of San Francisco, and many friends. Two other sons, G. G. Bundy and Virgil Bundy, who live in the northwest, were unable to be present. The Bundys were married in Idaho, February 28, 1882. They later moved to Tacoma, where, until his recent retirement from business, Mr. Bundy was prominent in the lumber industry.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fields, of Geneva avenue, were hosts at a card party last Saturday night in their home in honor of Mr. Frank Wilson, of Yountsville, their house guest. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dorn, Mr. and Mrs. William Bolger, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lunt, Henry Shroer and Frank Wilson.

CARD OF THANKS

We extend our heartfelt thanks to our many friends, Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City, Colma Volunteer Fire Department, Native Sons of the Golden West, and Druids, Olive Grove No. 116, for their beautiful floral offerings and the many acts of kindness and comforting words of sympathy during our late bereavement in the loss of a loving wife and devoted mother.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1932 NUMBER 32

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Examination

An Irish policeman was taking an examination for promotion.

Question: "What is rabies, and what do you know about it?"

Answer: "Rabies is Jewish priests, and you can't do a thing about it."

Have you tried Baldwin, the sootless Coal?

"Where are you going in such a rush?"

"I'm trying to get something for my husband."

"Had any offers?"

"So you have a new baby brother? Do you think he's going to stay?"

"I think so. He's got all his things off."

Wuxtry Special!

Reporter: "I've got a perfect news story."

City Editor: "The man bite the dog?"

Reporter: "Naw, a bull threw a Congressman."

Planning a home for the future is one of life's greatest pleasures, and planning one that can be used now, can grow thru the years and be an all-time absorbing interest and a complete satisfaction, is a game that can't be beat.

And some men are known by their deeds, others by their mortgages.

The pedestrian was dodging about indecisively to the bewilderment of the motorist, who finally stopped entirely and asked, "Would it be requiring too much of you to ask you to outline your plans?"

He heard a funny conundrum and decided to try it on his wife.

"Do you know why I am like a mule?" he asked when he got home.

"No," she replied promptly. "I know you are, but I don't know why."

The tragedy of the flea is that he knows for a certainty that all his children will go to the dogs.
